ONE Haverhill partnership is about to wage a three year war on obesity, crime and unemployment through a new business plan.

The partnership wants to tackle five specific areas in the town: health and wellbeing; crime and anti-social behaviour; education, training and employment; the town centre masterplan and culture.

Chairman of One Haverhill John Mayhew said: "The business plan sets out the current view of what could be achieved, as identified by our members, the organisations they are part of and the community in Haverhill.

"It is a living document, a work in progress. We are agreeing a long-term strategy but will also continue to identify short-term outcomes that can be realised to drive real change.

"More plans and more detail will follow over the next three years as priorities shift, but the main focus and purpose of One Haverhill partnership will remain."

Obesity has been targeted as a top priority, with adult obesity for 2015/16 in the town sitting at 30 per cent, nearly five per cent higher than the English average, according to figures for Public Health England (PHE).

Childhood obesity in the town was higher than all of St Edmundsbury and Suffolk, according to the same PHE figures.

One Haverhill wants to promote more exercise and introduce social prescribing for non-medical conditions from August 2017.

The new business plan which would serve the town until 2020 is also aiming to address the perceived level of crime in Haverhill.

The business plan states: "While crime levels in Haverhill remain low and in the main part are reducing, residents of Haverhill perceive crime levels to be higher and fear crime more than other St Edmundsbury or Suffolk residents."

Problems with houses of multiple occupation (HMOs) and drug misuse across the town are being specifically targeted by One Haverhill.

The partnership wants to employ a key worker for people living in HMOs and also work with relevant agencies to determine the level of demand for services tackling drug abuse.

Educationally, 6 per cent of 16 - 19 year olds in Haverhill are not in education, employment or training, nearly double the 3.6 per cent for the whole of St Edmundsbury.

One Haverhill has set down goals of breaking down mental health barriers to education and expanding and promoting adult education.

For the masterplan the partnership has set itself three targets to reach by 2020.

It wants to create a blue-light district to bring all emergency services under one roof, improve congestion and make walking a more attractive option in the town.

Cultural promotion is a new addition to One Haverhill's remit with plans to develop and create new arts initiatives as well as find ways to engage more people.

The draft business plan is open for public consultation and Mr Mayhew has urged people to get involved and have their say.

Both the business plan, and the public consultation document, can be viewed via the One Haverhill partnership website.

Paper copies are also available from Haverhill Arts Centre, Haverhill Library and Haverhill Leisure Centre.

The deadline for completing the questionnaire is midnight Sunday, June 25.

GENERAL ELECTION 2017

Rise in Labour

SPEAKING OUT: Heidi Allen has said Theresa May should have done more to acknowledge strong
MPs who had lost their seats

May 'will be gone in six months'

HEIDI Allen doesn't see Theresa May staying as Prime Minister for longer than six months, the Conservative MP for South
Cambridgeshire has said.

In a frank interview with radio station LBC, Mrs Allen said she did not think Mrs
May would remain Prime Minister "indefinitely" and her time at Number 10 could even be a "period of transition" as the UK negotiated Brexit.

"If this was any other election in any other time in our history you could say 'yes, the Prime Minister needs to stand down', but this is different of course because we are about to start negotiating Brexit

so that puts an entirely different complexion on that," she told LBC's Iain Dale.

"We do need a Prime Minister at this moment."

In reference to Mrs May's speech outside Downing Street after announcing she will form a minority government, Mrs Allen, who was returned to the House of Commons with a majority of 15,952, added: "It's almost like she's unaware of what's happened in the past 24 hours.

"Personally, I'm really struggling. I think we've lost some amazing, amazing MPs, some of the best, most independently minded Tory MPs we've lost and there should have been acknowledgement of responsibility for them
losing their seats."

When pressed by Mr Dale as to how long she thinks Mrs May could last, she said: "I certainly don't see any longer than six months."

Following the interview, many took to Twitter to praise her "honesty".

vote but Heidi 'over moon'

CONSERVATIVE candidate Heidi Allen has been re-elected as MP for South Cambridgeshire.

The result was announced at Cambourne Village College.

Mrs Allen won 33,631 votes, 52 percent of the ballots cast, on a local turnout of 76.36 per cent.

Despite slightly increasing her share of the vote, her 2015 majority of 20,594 fell to 15,952.

The constituency saw a considerable gain for the Labour Party over the last general election.

Labour candidate Dan Greef won 17,679 votes, nearly a 10 per cent increase in his 2015 vote share.

The Liberal Democrats' Susan van de Ven secured 12,102 votes and the Green Party's Simon Sadders received 1,512 votes.

Following her victory, Mrs Allen said she was feeling "fantastic".

She added: "It's such a lovely feeling, always a little bit paranoid wondering if you're going to be re-elected. Really surprised that the vote share has gone up, was not expecting that at all. Just absolutely over the moon."

Mrs Allen emphasised that she was very satisfied with her "positive" cam-

"In terms of what we've done on the doorstep – always, always, always positive campaigning. I've never got into negative campaigning."

"The reaction has been brilliant on the doorsteps and we've seen that here tonight."

Labour candidate Mr Greef said: "I started this campaign saying that Britain deserved better than a hard Tory Brexit. It appears the voters agreed and I urge Heidi and her colleagues to work for an exit from the EU that is in Britain's interest."

"We are supposed to start Brexit talks in a matter of days – who is going to be leading those negotiations?"

"On the doorstep I have heard time and again how people in South Cambridgeshire care deeply for our public services and don't trust the Tories with our NHS, our children's education and with the social care of our elderly."

"Regardless of which way you have voted at this election and what happens over the next days, weeks and months, I will stand by the value that in Britain we have the potential be a nation for the many, not the few."

Originally from Yorkshire, Mrs Allen entered politics after 18 years of working in both the public and private sector.

During her previous two years in Parliament she sat on the Work and Pensions committee and frequently challenged the Conservative government on Brexit, child refugees and disability benefit cuts.

Toasting victory with a happy meal

JUBILANT MP Heidi Allen celebrated her success with a trip to McDonald's.

After Thursday's count, the South Cambridgeshire MP headed to the Caxton branch of the burger chain.

Despite increasing her vote share, a surge to Labour saw her majority drop by more than 4,500 votes compared to 2015.

Mrs Allen said she was "absolutely over the moon"

to be returned as MP.

Leaving the count at Cambourne Village College in the early hours, she headed with her team to celebrate with soft drinks and the meal.

Dog bite brings new meaning to 'snap election'

HEIDI Allen has revealed that door-to-door campaigning can be a risky business.

She attended Thursday's count sporting a bandage on one finger after being bitten by a dog while delivering leaflets.

The unsuspecting Mrs Allen was pushing campaign material through a letterbox when the canine attacked.

She said: "It didn't even make a noise when it grabbed me. It did not let go – I was screaming my head off."

The unfortunate Mrs Allen had to have a tetanus injection following the incident and fears the finger could even be broken.

A smiling Mrs Allen joked about the incident at the general election count for South Cambridgeshire, where she was running against Labour's Dan Greef, Liberal Democrat Susan van de Ven and the Green Party's Simon Sadders.

"Clearly not a Tory dog," she said.

Hancock retains seat with increase in share of vote

CONSERVATIVE Matt Hancock has been re-elected MP for West Suffolk.

Mr Hancock retained his seat by a majority of 17,063, taking 31,649 votes in last week's General Election.

The result was called by acting deputy returning officer Rachael Mann just after 2.40am last Friday following the count at Newmarket Leisure Centre.

Labour's Michael Jefferys received 14,586 votes, UKIP's Julian Flood took 2,396 votes, Lib Dem Elfreda Tealby-Watson had 2,180 and Green candidate Donald Allwright took 935.

Mr Hancock, who was first elected as MP for West Suffolk in 2010, increased his majority by 61.16 per cent and his share of the vote by 11 per cent from 2015.

RACHAEL MCMENEMY
@rach_mc94CN

Turnout in West Suffolk rose by more than 2 per cent to 67 per cent and the total number of votes cast was 51,852 out of a possible electorate of 77,348.

Speaking after his victory Mr Hancock said: "I'm delighted to be re-elected as the MP for West Suffolk, it's a job I love."

He also promised to bring a cinema to Newmarket, make improvements to the A1307 and work with Cambridgeshire Mayor James Palmer on the possibility of bringing a railway to Haverhill.

During the last Parliament Mr Hancock became Minister of State for Digital and Culture at the Department for Culture, Media and Sport in July, 2016.

The UKIP, Lib Dem and Green candidates all lost their deposits.

Mrs Tealby-Watson, who took 4.21 per cent of the vote, said the election came "a little too soon" for the Lib Dems, but added she was "proud" to stand up for their values.

Mr Flood, who gained 4.63 per cent of the vote, said UKIP would be "waiting in the wings" should the Government not deliver on Brexit.

Mr Allwright took 1.81 per cent of the vote.

SCIENCE

A medical

Cambridge scientist Su Metcalfe thinks she can cure multiple sclerosis – and other auto-immune diseases – using the body's own defences and some very modern technology. MATTHEW GOODING went to meet her, and find out about her company, LIFNano

DR Su Metcalfe is sitting quietly reading through some documents in the lobby of the Judge Business School when I arrive for our interview. It would be easy to walk right past her and not know you were in the presence of a woman who could be on the verge of curing multiple sclerosis.

MS, an auto-immune condition which affects 2.3 million people around the world, attacks cells in the brain and the spinal cord, causing an array of physical and mental side effects including blindness and muscle weakness. At the moment there's no cure, but Su and her company, LIFNano, hope to change that.

"Some people get progressive MS, so go straight to the severe form of the disease, but the majority have a relapsing or remitting version," she says.

"It can start from the age of 30, and there's no cure, so all you can do is suppress the immune response, but the drugs that do that have side effects, and you can't repair the brain. The cost of those drugs is very high, and in the UK there are a lot of people who don't get treated at all."

But now a solution could be in sight thanks to Su, who has married one of the body's cleverest functions with some cutting-edge technology. The natural side of the equation is provided by a stem cell particle called a LIF.

Su was working at the university's department of surgery when she made her big breakthrough: "I was looking to see what controls the immune response and stops it auto-attacking us," she explains.

"I discovered a small binary switch, controlled by a LIF, which regulates inside the immune cell itself. LIF is able to control the cell to ensure it doesn't attack your own body but then releases the attack when needed."

"That LIF, in addition to regulating and protecting us against attack, also plays a major role in keeping the brain and spinal cord healthy. In fact it plays a major role in tissue repair generally, turning on stem cells that are naturally occurring in the body, making it a natural regenerative medicine, but also plays a big part in repairing the brain when it's been damaged."

"So I thought, this is fantastic. We can treat auto-immune disease, and we've got something to treat MS, which attacks both the brain and the spinal cord. So you have a double whammy that can stop and reverse the auto-immunity, and also repair the damage caused in the brain."

Presumably Su, who has been in Cambridge since she was an undergraduate but retains a soft accent from her native Yorkshire, was dancing a jig of delight around her lab at this point, but she soon hit a snag; the LIF could only survive outside the cell for 20 minutes before being broken down by the body, meaning there was not enough time to deploy it in a therapy. And this is where the technology, in the form of nanoparticles, comes in.

"They are made from the same material as soluble stitches, so they're compatible with the body and they slowly dissolve," says Su.

"We load the cargo of the LIF into those particles, which become the delivery device that slowly dissolve and deliver the LIF over five days. The nano-particle itself is a protective environment, and the enzymes that break it down can't access it. You can also decorate the surface of the particles with antibodies, so it becomes a homing device that can target specific parts of the brain, for example. So you get the right dose, in the right place, and at the right time."

The particles themselves were developed at Yale University, which is listed as co-inventor with Su on the IP. But LIFNano has the worldwide licence to deploy them, and Su believes we are on the verge of a step-change in medicine.

She says: "Nanomedicine is a new era, and big pharma has already entered this quantum leap?

Dr Su Metcalfe is hoping to start clinical trials in 2020

space to deliver drugs while trying to avoid the side effects. The quantum leap is to actually go into biologics and tap into the natural pathways of the body.

"We're not using any drugs, we're simply switching on the body's own systems of self-tolerance and repair. There aren't any side effects because all we're doing is tipping the balance. Auto-immunity happens when that balance has gone awry slightly, and we simply reset that. Once you've done that, it becomes self-sustaining and you don't have to keep giving therapy, because the body has its balance back."

LIFNano has already attracted two major funding awards, from drug firm Merck and the Government's Innovate UK agency. Su herself is something of a novice when it comes to business, but has recruited cannily in the form of chairman Florian Kemmerich and CEO Oliver Jarry, both experienced operators in the pharma sector. With the support of the Judge, the company hopes to attract more investment, with the aim of starting clinical trials in 2020.

"The 2020 date is ambitious, but with the funding we've got and the funding we're hoping to raise, it should be possible," says Su.

"We've got everything we need in place to make the nano-particles in a clinically compliant manner, it's just a case of flicking the switch when we have the money. We're looking at VCs and big pharma, because they have a strong interest in this area. We're doing all our pre-clinical work concurrently while bringing in the major funds the company needs to go forward in its own right."

Immune cells have been a big part of Su's career, and as we talk, her passion for her subject is obvious. "I wanted to understand something that was so simple on one level but also so complex," she says.

"The immune cell is the only single cell in the body that is its own unity, so it functions alone. It's probably one of the most powerful cells in the body because it can kill you, and if you haven't got it you die because you haven't got it."

And MS may just be the start for LIFNano.

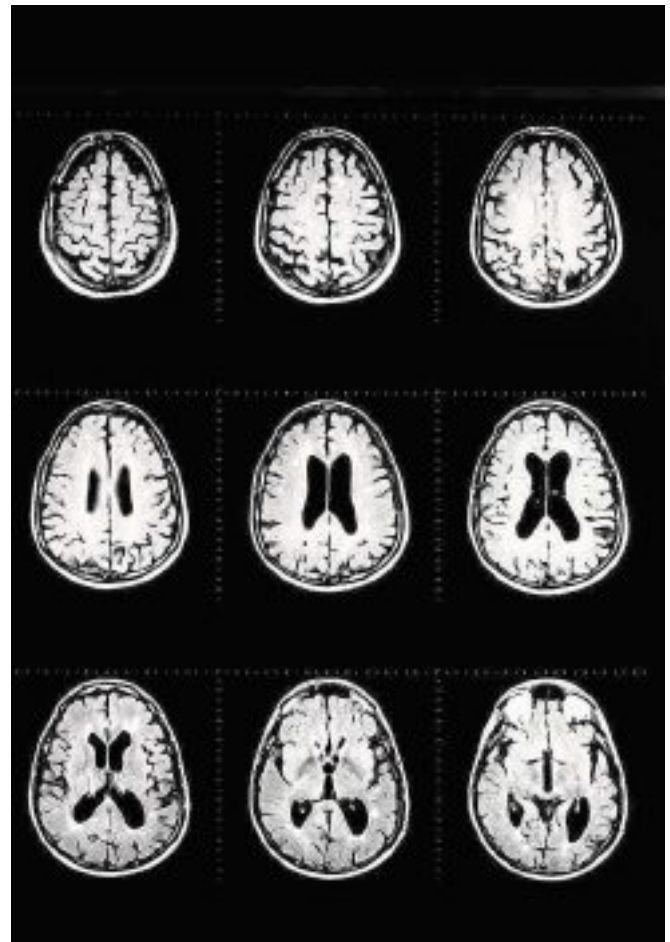

"MS is our key driver at the moment, but it's going to be leading through to other major auto-immune disease areas," Su adds.

"Psoriasis is high up on our list, and diabetes is another. Downstream there are all the dementias, because a LIF is a major health factor for the brain. So if we can get it into the brain we can start protecting against dementia."

Now that would be something.

We're not using any drugs, we're simply switching on the body's own systems of self-tolerance and repair. There aren't any side effects because all we're doing is tipping the balance.

HEALTH

Advice for couples struggling to conceive

TOM PILGRIM

@TomPilgrimCN

COUPLES facing complications having a child can get advice on alternative routes to parenthood at a free event this week.

Bourn Hall Pathways to Parenthood Fayre will help potential parents explore options such as IVF treatment with donated eggs or sperm and adoption.

The event on Saturday aims to help couples through the process of accepting that a future child might not be genetically related to one or both parents.

This includes same-sex couples who know from the outset that help will be needed to start a family.

Jackie Stewart, an independent fertility counsellor at Bourn Hall Clinic, explains that some patients need to allow themselves time to grieve over the fact that they will not be able to have a child that is biologically related to one or both partners.

"For some this is a massive emotional hurdle, whereas others come to terms with it more quickly," she says.

"Some people decide that they want to cherish what they have and move on with their lives. For others, they may consider fertility treatment with donated eggs/sperm/embryo or via surrogacy.

"Another route is adoption or fostering. We are happy to support them with all these options."

Jackie also provides counselling to couples considering IVF through donated eggs or sperm. One of the common issues covered is a concern that any child will not feel like "theirs" and when the child should be told about their origins.

According to research by the Centre for Family Studies, children who are told about their origins before the age of seven have more positive family relationships and higher levels of well-being in their teenage years, compared to children told later in life.

Dr Thomas Mathews, UK medical director for Bourn Hall, believes that honesty is a good thing. He says: "The anonymity for sperm and egg donors was lifted in 2005 because it was realised that it is important for children to know their origins.

"Although this did create a drop in donors initially, we have made up for this at Bourn Hall by creating our own sperm bank, encouraging altruistic donation and offering egg and sperm sharing programmes.

"Patients who participate in the sperm or egg sharing programmes understand clearly what it means to struggle with infertility. They have made an informed choice and are mentally prepared if later they are approached by an 18-year-old looking for more information about their beginnings."

The Pathways to Parenthood Fayre is at Bourn Hall Clinic, Bourn, CB23 2TN, on June 17 from 10am to 3pm. For more information visit: www.bournhall.co.uk

Man is found

POLICE said a Haverhill man was found after an appeal for help in tracing him last week.

The missing 24-year-old man had been last seen in the Burton End area on Thursday and police officers were concerned for his welfare.

However, they later reported that the man had been found.

Donations flood in to help tower block inferno victims

@rach_mc94CN

HUNDREDS of people have descended on Haverhill Arts Centre to donate clothes, toys, blankets, toiletries and other essentials to the victims of the Grenfell Tower blaze in west London.

More than 200 firefighters battled the massive fire at the tower block in west London that has killed 12 people and seen more than 50 admitted to hospital.

Town and borough councillor Tony Brown set up the makeshift donation centre on Wednesday morning after waking to see the news of the devastating fire.

He said: "I got up this morning at six to see the horrible news on TV about what happened in west London.

"It was just shocking and loads of people, survivors, had nothing, just the clothes they were standing in."

"I emailed and asked to get the arts centre open and put a post on Facebook to say there was a facility to donate clothes, all sorts of things and the response has been phenomenal.

"It's been absolutely fantastic, once again Haverhill steps up to the plate."

Hundreds of donated items were due to be taken to London by Cllr Brown today.

Gemma Curtis, who went down to the centre to donate, said: "When I saw it on the news it just broke my heart. I couldn't think of anything worse than being trapped in a fire. All those people in there losing everything. Their homes, possessions and worst of all their loved ones. All the people who are severely injured and left with nothing!

"I thought the least I could do was donate some clothes, blankets and toiletries. There may be someone that could make use of it and if not, I'm sure it will be put to use somewhere else."

Gemma added: "When I saw the post on Haverhill UK I was pleased somebody had already put a plan together to do a delivery of essentials so that's when I started sorting through some things that I could donate.

"The lovely lady at the arts centre was doing a tremendous job of sorting through the bags that others had taken down.

"I'm so proud of our community pulling together. So many are quick to judge when something goes wrong in town but all the good tends to go unnoticed. Well done Haverhill."

Haverhill firm Practical Van Hire donated one of their vans to deliver the donations.

SCHOOLS

Police calm fears over incident

PARENTS in Haverhill were sent an alert that masked men in a white van had approached two children.

The incident was said to have happened near Samuel Ward Academy on Sunday, June 11, and involved two pupils of secondary school age.

However, it has since been confirmed by police that the event was less sinister than first believed.

A spokeswoman said: "Police have now looked into the incident and this appears to not have been as initially reported.

"The two boys were playing when a white van pulled up and two men got out. Neither of the men spoke to the boys and neither made any gesture or movement towards them. It seems one of the men had something on his face that concerned the boys and they ran away. No crime has been committed, as no approach was made to the boys."

Parents at schools across the town were sent an email to alert them to the incident before the police had fully investigated it.

CROWDFUNDING

Supporters rally to raise funds for animal sanctuary's vet bills

HAPPY: Jaybeth Animal Sanctuary owner Carol Harris

RACHAEL MCMENEMY
@rach_mc94CN

A CROWDFUNDING page set up to cover vet bills for Jaybeth Animal Sanctuary has more than quintupled its original target – in just four days.

Animal lover Sheena Hester set up a JustGiving page after hearing from friend Amanda Lincoln that the sanctuary, in Haverhill Road, Barnardiston, and owner Carol Harris were in desperate need of a little extra help.

Sheena set up the page on Sunday with a target of just £200 but within a couple of hours the target had been smashed and Sheena has now raised more than £1,000.

She said: "I set up a JustGiving page after some people suggested it was so easy to do. I set a target of £200 on Sunday but exceeded that really quickly so upped it to £750 and then exceeded that again and then by Monday evening we had exceeded the £1,000 mark, it's just amazing really."

"Jaybeth is a special place in my heart, I've got three cats over the years and I always wanted to do more."

Amanda, who has helped organise food donations in the past said she got a call from Carol at the weekend after she took in a dog that was in urgent need of vet treatment.

She said: "Saturday night she [Carol] called in a real tizzy. Carol doesn't ask for help unless she really, really needs it, so for her to ask it would obviously have to be very, very urgent."

Amanda put a plea out on Facebook which is when Sheena stepped in and set up the JustGiving page.

Carol has been running Jaybeth for 40 years and she said she was overwhelmed with the response from the local community.

She said: "It's absolutely amazing!"

"It's been 40 years since I opened and I don't think I've had such a big surprise in all the years I have been here."

"It really made me feel so much like we're not on our own. Sometimes it seems a little bit isolating out here, especially in bad weather like last week. It's made me really happy."

"Our long suffering vet has been so good, anything to help, and it's a huge account I have so this funding is a step in the right direction towards helping us with a bill."

A poorly pup who sparked the plea for help, Buddy, needs investigative X-rays and a possible biopsy for a lump on his sternum but the sanctuary was worried about covering the cost of his treatment.

Buddy was originally going to be put down after his owner died without vets investigating his lump, but Carol's intervention means Buddy will get the treatment he needs.

Carol added: "People who have read the crowdfunding page have been turning up with food for the animals and loads of it, which is heartwarming. Sometimes you think 'how am I going to get on?', but people have come forward in their droves."

The sanctuary, run by Carol, who is helped by three regular volunteers, caters for animals of every type. Currently Carol has around 20 dogs, 30 cats, some geese, lambs, ponies and an owl.

Carol added: "I don't have Facebook so I can't tell people how great they are – you don't hear much from the dogs!"

Amanda says that despite things hitting rock bottom the animals would never have been in danger of going without.

She said: "Carol would have gone without if it meant she didn't eat, the animals would have done. The animals would not have been in a dire emergency but she would have been."

Carol added that as well as donations she is always looking for volunteers, especially dog walkers.

NEW TENTS: 1st Haverhill Scouts celebrate after Cllr John Burns gave them £600 from his locality budget

Councillor's cash donation helps Scouts camp out under the stars

A SCOUT group in Haverhill is to encourage even more young people to camp out beneath the stars, after gaining support from a local councillor.

The 1st Haverhill Scout group which caters for 80 young people has bought two new patrol tents after St

Edmundsbury Borough Councillor John Burns gave them £600 from his locality budget towards the purchase.

Scout leader Dave Miller said:

"All of us at 1st Haverhill Scouts would like to say a massive thank you to councillor John Burns for his donation.

"We were able to use the funding to replace our older canvas tents with new ones, which the children were able to enjoy using for the first time at our recent camp.

"Scouting gives children the chance to learn important life skills while having fun, and this donation has helped to further the success of Scouting in Haverhill."

Cllr Burns said: "Scouting in general is about encouraging young people to make new friends, develop new skills and gain in confidence. That in turn means that both as a group, and as individuals, they are able to go on to help support and strengthen our local communities.

"Part of their development within the Scouts will come through camping out and having these tents will allow even more of them to enjoy this great experience which can really add to their sense of self-assurance."

MORE THAN JUST A PETROL STATION

FOR everything you need, Westrope Motors provide it all in their one stop shop.

The location on North Street, Steeple Bumpstead, is not just a simple village shop. It is home to everything from a cash point to a Post Office and sells everything you could hope to purchase at a moment's notice from tobacco to groceries.

ADVERTISING FEATURE

A family business through and through for more than 50 years, Westrope Motors was taken over by Dave and Julia Dollin nine years ago and one day they too hope to pass it on to their children.

Dave said: "We're the only one in the village so we try and do a bit of everything so we can cater for everyone."

Formerly, the store also provided MOT and repair services for cars, but now their focus is on assisting the village with all of their other convenience needs.

They also incorporate a fuel service and filling station into the business.

Call Westrope Motors on (01440) 730444 or visit them on North Street, Steeple Bumpstead, Haverhill, Suffolk, CB9 7DP.

FOOD & DRINK

INGREDIENTS

For the potato topping:

600g potatoes, peeled, cut into chunks
40ml semi-skimmed or skimmed milk
40g mature Cheddar cheese, grated

For the fish pie mixture:

25g butter
25g plain flour
400ml semi-skimmed or skimmed milk
Sea salt and freshly ground black pepper, to taste
400g pack fresh or frozen fish pie mix (if frozen, defrost in fridge overnight)
2 carrots, peeled and coarsely grated
2 leeks, washed and diced
To serve:
200g frozen peas
200g frozen sweetcorn

METHOD

1. Preheat the oven to 200C/Gas mark 6.
2. Put the potatoes into a saucepan and add enough cold water to just cover them. Bring to the boil, then reduce the heat and simmer for 15-20 minutes until tender. Drain the potatoes well, then return to the pan, add the milk and mash together until smooth. Season to taste with salt and black pepper.
3. While the potatoes cook, make the sauce for the fish pie mixture. Put the butter and flour into a small pan and mix together, then cook over a low heat for three to four minutes, stirring, until light golden brown and starting to look slightly grainy. Remove from the heat, gradually stir in the milk, then return to the heat and continue to cook and stir until the sauce starts to bubble and thicken. Simmer gently for a minute or so, stirring, then season to taste.

4. Put the fish pie mix into an ovenproof dish and mix in the white sauce, followed by the carrots and leeks. Top this with the mashed potato, covering the fish mixture completely. Sprinkle the cheese over the top, then transfer to the oven and bake for 30 minutes until golden brown on top.
5. Meanwhile, bring a saucepan of water to the boil, then add the peas and sweetcorn and simmer for three to four minutes. Drain well.
6. Serve the fish pie with the mixed peas and sweetcorn alongside.

Thrifty family feasting

As Eat Well For Less? returns for a new eight-part series, ELLA WALKER finds out what hosts Gregg Wallace and Chris Bavin have learned about cutting costs without sacrificing flavour

WE all do it, plump for the shop-bought baguette rather than the home-stuffed pitta, put the 'on-offer' big name chocolate biscuits in the trolley, even though the own-brand ones taste identical and are still a quid less than the ones on sale.

But instead of sweeping an aisle's worth of BOGOF deals and ready meals into your basket, there is another way.

Gregg Wallace and Chris Bavin are back with a fourth instalment of Eat Well For Less?, the BBC One series in which the duo – both foodies and long-time greengrocers – meet with families struggling to manage their food bills.

The plan is simple: To improve people's nutritional knowledge and discover how shopping habits affect what we eat and how much it costs.

"Originally it was supposed to be looking at the difference in price between food stuffs. So we started with fish and chips, and why they should be £10 in a chippy and £30 in a restaurant. That fascinated me," says Gregg, 52, explaining why he first got involved with the show. "The biggest thing I've learnt is what a huge cookery skill shortage there is across the UK, and how many people rely on convenience

Greg Wallace and Chris Bavin and the new book to accompany the series, above foods. I find it troubling."

The series' accompanying book, Eat Well For Less – Family Feasts On A Budget, written by Jo Scarratt-Jones, sets out to combat that reliance.

Packed with practical meal planning ideas and tips, it features cut-out-and-keep shopping lists and menu plans, as well as conversion charts and details on how long to store stuff in the fridge and freezer for before it goes mushy or mouldy.

Then there are the recipes, all designed to be wallet-friendly staples that, when it comes to the final scraps and leftovers, families will (lovingly) fight over.

For MasterChef judge Gregg growing up, his favourite family meal was "always Sunday roast at my grandmother's. My grandmother was by far the best cook in the family", while Chris's top childhood meals have continued into adulthood.

"When I was growing up, we had several meals on rotation and my favourite meals were sausage and mash and spaghetti Bolognese – still both firm favourites," he shares.

Off screen, Gregg says the impact of making the programme and learning the art of brand swapping has led to a game of sorts between him and his Italian wife, Anne. "My wife, who does the shopping now, buys different brands to see if I notice!"

For Chris, 36, who also presents Tomorrow's Food with Dara O Briain, it's helped restructure his week as well as his cupboards. "We, like so many families, favoured some big brands and now we buy hardly any. We also try to sit down as a family every Sunday and plan our meals for the week."

Their main aim though is to extinguish the belief, understandably held by lots of people who have too little time and too many mouths to feed, that cooking is just another chore – "like ironing or hoovering," notes Gregg, "and not in any way fun or something that could bring the whole family together."

"I want [people], more than anything, to realise that good, nutritious and tasty food doesn't have to take time or cost a lot of money."

Chris adds: "We are all under more time pressure, families are leading busier lives than ever and the window to make a meal is getting smaller."

"We are also being convinced of the idea that cooking isn't convenient, or is harder than it is, which is where convenience foods and meal solutions come in to save the day – but not our wallets."

"I would love families to try and spend more time cooking and eating together. With a bit of planning, you can save hundreds if not thousands of pounds."

PEOPLE ask me lots of things like, did you brush your hair, why have you got toothpaste on your top, did you forget to buy milk. People also ask me to recommend wines. I try to do that in my little corner of this page but I'm not by your side when you're out at the shops.

I'd say, if you're stuck, look out for award-winners. Many retailers will pop an awards' sticker on wines (but check the award is for the vintage on sale – not for a previous year).

The International Wine Challenge is a good shout. It has now announced the 2017 Great Value Awards after judges blind-tasted thousands of wine. Here's a selection:

The IWC Great Value Sparkling under £12 Award was given to Marks & Spencer Rosado Cava

RAISE A GLASS

WITH JANE CLARE

Prestige NV (£11) which judges said had a "bright and exciting balance of fruit to acidity with a toasty undertone".

Morrisons did well with a couple of Great Value whites including Shorn Black Edition Sauvignon Blanc 2016 (£7, IWC Great Value White under £8) and The Best Rioja Reserva Blanco 2011 (£8.99, Great Value White between £8 and £12) which judges said was "exemplary" with a "rich nose and palate of citrus and stone-fruit".

Tesco Finest* Viña del Cura Rioja Reserva 2012 (£8) won both an IWC gold medal and the title of Great Value Red under £8. Tesco also scored a hit with Ringbolt Cabernet Sauvignon 2014 (£12.99, Great Value Red under £15).

The "elegant long finish" of Saint-Emilion Grand Cru 2015 (£10.99, Lidl) impressed the judges and so it was declared the IWC Great Value Red between £8 and £12.

Winning pinks include Aldi's The Exquisite Collection Cotes de Provence Rose 2016 (£5.99, IWC Great Value Rosé under £8 Award) and Mirabeau Classic 2016 (Waitrose, £9.99) is the proud owner of the title The IWC Great Value Rosé between £8 and £12 Award.

■ Also in my glass ... a nod to World Gin Day (Saturday June 10).

Whitley Neill Rhubarb & Ginger Gin (£24.95, masterof-malt.com, 43% abv) looks lush in its cerise bottle uniform. I'm a big fan of rhubarb-flavoured gins; this one includes the botanicals juniper, lemon and orange peel, orris bark, angelica root, coriander seeds, together with rhubarb essence and ginger extract.

It has been created to reflect childhood memories of the countryside. I'm not as big a fan as I hoped I might be; on the nose I wanted more rhubarb and I barely sensed the ginger; but in the mouth the essence of the flavours come through, sweet and creamy.

I'll continue the rural theme with J.J. Whitley Nettle Gin (around £20, masterofmalt.com and Amazon.com, 38.6% abv) which has aromas of green spring-wet hedgerows and freshly ripped sappy leaves; the taste is citrusy, has an oily reflection of juniper and those same notes of a wet wood in spring. I liked this one.

INGREDIENTSFor the pasta:

300g plain wholemeal flour, plus extra for dusting
3 eggs
1tbsp olive oil
½tsp sea salt

For the sauce:

180g broccoli, cut into florets and the stem into thick slices
4 tinned anchovies, drained and roughly chopped
3tbsp extra-virgin olive oil
20g Parmesan cheese, finely grated
Sea salt and freshly ground black pepper, to taste

METHOD

1. First make the pasta. Put the flour into a large bowl, then make a well in the centre. Add the eggs, olive oil and salt to the well and whisk together, then gradually stir in the flour, pulling a little flour in each time you stir the mixture to make a smooth, firm dough.
2. Flatten the dough into a disc about 1cm thick, then wrap in cling film and chill in the fridge for 20 minutes.
3. Unwrap the chilled dough and lay it on a lightly floured work surface, then cut it in half. Roll out each portion of dough to a rectangle about 5mm thick, turning it as you go to ensure you have an even thickness, then roll each portion again to about 2mm thick – the thinner the better.

When the pasta is as thin as you can get it, cut it into strips about 3mm wide for tagliatelle, or thinner for linguine.

4. Hang the pasta strips over a clean broom handle or rolling pin to allow them to dry slightly while you cook the broccoli for the sauce.

5. Bring a saucepan of water to the boil, then add the broccoli and cook for four to five minutes until just tender. Drain well, set

PERFECT PASTA

BROCCOLI AND PARMESAN PASTA

aside and keep warm.

6. Bring a separate large saucepan of salted water to the boil. Add the pasta, return to the boil and cook for three to four minutes until the pasta rises to the surface. Drain in a colander, reserving some of the cooking water, then return the pasta to the pan.

7. Add the broccoli, anchovies and olive oil to the pasta and toss well to combine. Add about two tablespoons of the reserved pasta water and cook for one minute, stirring as you go. The pasta should be evenly coated in the sauce.

8. Season to taste, then pile the pasta into serving bowls, sprinkle over the Parmesan and serve immediately.

INGREDIENTS

100g natural yoghurt
1tsp dried chilli flakes
1tsp garam masala
1tsp smoked paprika
1tbsp medium curry powder
¼tsp sea salt
5cm piece of fresh root ginger, peeled and finely chopped or grated
4 garlic cloves, finely chopped or grated
500g boneless skinless chicken breasts, cut into small chunks
2tbsp rapeseed oil
1 onion, diced
1tbsp tomato puree
400g tin chopped tomatoes
300g basmati rice
2tbsp chopped coriander

CURRY FAVOUR

CHICKEN TIKKA
MASALA WITH RICE

METHOD

1. Tip the yoghurt into a bowl, then add the spices, salt, ginger and garlic and mix really well. Add the chicken and stir until completely coated. If you have the time, cover and place in the fridge overnight, but if not, cover and chill while you saute the veg.
2. Heat a saute pan until medium hot, then add the rapeseed oil and onion and stir well. Cover, reduce the heat to medium-low and cook for about 10 minutes until softened and just coloured, stirring occasionally.

3. Stir in the tomato puree and cook for one minute, then add the tomatoes and bring to a simmer.

4. Add the marinated chicken and all the marinade, stir through, then bring to a gentle simmer, cover and cook for 15-20 minutes until the chicken is cooked through and the sauce thickened slightly, stirring occasionally. You don't want the yoghurt will split – just a gentle simmer.

5. Meanwhile, bring a large saucepan of salted water to the boil, add the basmati rice and cook according to the packet instructions until tender, then drain.

6. Stir the coriander into the sauce and serve the chicken tikka masala with the hot rice.

TRIBUTE: ELO
Encounter will be performing at Haverhill
Arts Centre on Saturday

BAROQUE Theatre present three fast-paced one act plays with their show Comedy Triple Bill at Haverhill Arts Centre tonight.

Last Tango in Little Grimley sees a local am-dram group attempt to drum up some audiences by putting on a sizzling sex comedy. Hmm, this may be ill advised.

A Jolly Sinister Jape is a Famous Five-type adventure in which a group of chums find themselves imprudently trapped in a mysterious house.

Last Panto in Little Grimley is a sequel to Last Tango in which the troupe, in yet another injudicious move, decide to put on a Christmas panto.

The Comedy Triple Bill promises to be chock-full of jolly japes in the style of the classic British sit-com.

■ Roll Over Beethoven because the greatest tribute to Jeff Lynne's Electric Light Orchestra is here!

The ELO Encounter promises a night filled with rock, roll and Blue Skies that would make even Mozart mambo and Bach boogie. So Hold on Tight because Rock 'n' Roll is King in a show that is guaranteed to have you partying All Over the World. The ELO Encounter is on Saturday, June 17; the Telephone Line is now open for your booking.

■ The Vera Lynn Story (Saturday, June 24, 5pm) showcases one of Britain's national treasures, following her rise to stardom from a pre-war radio performer to the armed-forces' sweetheart.

Recreating a time when music and melodies kept loved ones close and gave a nation hope, be swept up and travel back in time.

■ Snake Davis has worked with some of the biggest names in pop music for many a year and his little black book is packed with such A listers as Beyonce, Tina Turner, Take That, George Michael and Cher.

Now, along with his band, Snake will recreate the music he made with the stars in his Classic Sax Solos show. Listen to such favourites as Baker Street, Careless Whisper and A Million Love Songs and find out, if you don't know already, why the sax is so popular.

■ The Indians, who are in fact an Irish band (obviously) make a return visit to the arts centre on Friday, June 23, complete with headdresses and moccasins. That's as far as the Native American connection goes, their set is a bounty of old favourites and show tunes.

■ Thursday, June 22, sees a new broadcast from the National Theatre, Salomé.

It's the story of a girl whose mysterious dance changes the course of the world and places her at the centre of a revolution.

■ If you are a fan of Christian Bale, and even if you are not, The Promise is the film of the week (Wednesday, June 21) – in fact, the only film this week. Set during the last days of the Ottoman Empire it follows a love triangle between a brilliant medical student, a beautiful girl and an American journalist.

■ Moving on to next week the arts centre has a screening of Harry Potter and the Philosopher's Stone on Sunday, June 25.

Get yourself an apparition licence and transport yourself to the arts centre to celebrate 20 years since the adventures of Harry were first published.

■ Please note that the Africa Entsha performance has been cancelled.

Kia's Stonic to make debut

SKETCH: How the Stonic will look

CROSSOVERS and SUVs large and small are all the rage in today's car market and Kia is winding up to introduce its latest offering in the sector with the Stonic.

The Stonic is a compact crossover with European design flair which Kia says is inspired by the form and function of larger Kia SUVs such as the Sportage and Sorento.

The Korean car maker has just released design sketches of the Stonic which reveals a sweeping roofline and cleverly designed roof rack to add a sporty look to the vehicle.

The Stonic's interior features 'smart' packaging which optimises space for all occupants and has what Kia calls a floating HMI (human-machine interface) blending smartphone access with the car's many functions.

It goes on sale later in the year after its debut at the Frankfurt Motor Show in September when further details will be released.

Plenty of appeal from Fiat's 500L

WHEN Fiat pumped up the 500 it created a family car with a difference. Now it's update time and come September a new look Fiat 500L will be on the road.

The changes are subtle and mainly cosmetic but have the effect of bringing the diminutive retro-looking 500's bigger brother right up to date.

A new-look to the nose makes the 500L much more similar to the 500 itself. Inside, the cabin has been spruced up and now incorporates a seven-inch central touchscreen with TomTom sat-nav and connectivity that's compatible with Apple and Android devices.

All in all it has made the 500L a swish proposition in the crossover age and Fiat says it's likely that prices will remain as they are when the new models arrive.

That means the three model range will cost from less than £14,000 with the larger seven-seat derivative priced from just over £19,000.

The more SUV-oriented Trekking version has been renamed the

ROOMY: The new-look Fiat 500L

500L Cross and as well as being differentiated from the rest of the range with more robust styling also features an electronic traction system to give added grip over rough conditions.

Where all versions of the 500L score is with their family-friendly approach and the car is not only roomy all round but also nicely comfortable with above average head and leg room front and back. Boot space ranges from a useful 455 litres to 1,480 with the rear seats folded which makes the vehicle very practical.

As a family all rounder the 500L Cross is up with the best.

CONNECTIVITY: The Peugeot 308

Revamped 308 will be full of technology

PEUGEOT says that its revamped 308 hatchback, due to hit UK roads in September, will be crammed with a range of new technology making it one of the most driver-friendly motors on the market.

In a class driven by connectivity, the new Peugeot 308 has a 9.7-inch touchscreen which puts the key functions of the interior at the fingertips of the driver.

The functions available range from dual zone climate control to 3D connected navigation with TomTom Live updates.

The new infotainment system has Mirror Screen, comprising Mirrolink, Apple CarPlay and Android Auto functionality, allowing the integration of smartphone functions.

Prices start from around £19,000.

GRIPPING: Sport-developed suspension is a feature of the GT dCi

Performance Megane diesel is a bit of a beast

A HIGH performance diesel GT is being added to the Renault Megane line up as a new flagship for the range.

The new Megane GT dCi features the most powerful 1.6-litre diesel currently available using twin turbos to produce 165bhp.

Priced from £27,740 for the Megane hatch and £29,040 for the Sport Tourer estate, the GT is fitted with Renault's six speed dual clutch electronic gearbox.

Renault says the hatch version is capable of a top speed of 133mph, 0-62mph in eight seconds, and returns combined-cycle fuel consumption of 61.4mpg with CO2 of 120g/km. The figures for the Sport Tourer are 8.9sec, 133mph, 61.4mpg and 124g/km respectively.

The new GT is fitted with Renault Sport-developed suspension and the 4Control chassis with four-wheel steering for added agility.

The car is built at Renault's factory in Spain alongside the mainstream Megane models but has been designed by the Renault Sport team giving it a wider lower air intake with a honeycomb-pattern mesh flanked by lateral scoops at the front.

Dark metal, diamond cut 18-inch alloy wheels and door mirror housings match the finish on the front air scoops and rear diffuser.

On the inside the GT's sports front seats feature additional lateral support to the base and backrest and integral headrests.

The GT also features an auto-dimming rear view mirror and chrome door sill plates.

It also comes with standard equipment including lane departure warning, traffic sign recognition, automatic high/low beam, electronic stability control with traction and understeer control, ABS with hill start assist, adaptive cruise control, speed limiter and automatic headlights and windscreen wipers.

The GT's R-LINK2 multimedia system features an 8.7-inch display which can be operated with pinch and zoom movements, just like a smartphone or tablet. It gives access to TomTom LIVE services, DAB/ FM/ AM tuner, Bluetooth audio streaming and vehicle apps.

Jeep backs Brighton beach sports event

JEEP is to sponsor the Beach Sports Arena for the third year running as part of Paddle Round The Pier – the world's largest charity beach festival.

The Jeep Beach Sports Arena will host competitions such as beach volleyball, footvolley, beach tennis and the surf lifesaving sport of beach flags over the Paddle Festival weekend of July 1-2 in Brighton.

Paddle Round The Pier is an award-winning weekend of water sports and beach lifestyle activities in the popular Paddle Village in Brighton's Hove Lawns. It is run by volunteers, with all profits donated to charity.

The Jeep-supported Beach Sports Arena will be in use from this week and its special programme allows schoolchildren from across the south east to learn the fundamentals of being a beach lifeguard and keeping safe on the beach.

The arena, on the city seafront, will show a selection of the 4x4 company's vehicles including the latest Renegade Night Eagle.

New Tech version of popular Mazda2

MAZDA has enhanced its popular Mazda2 supermini with a new Tech Edition model, on sale from July 1.

The Tech Edition is limited to 750 cars and focuses on delivering extra technology.

Based on the £14,695 1.5-litre 90PS SE-L Nav, the Tech Edition has 16-inch alloy wheels, rear parking sensors, privacy glass, climate control, auto lights and rain-sensing wipers – for a price premium of £300 over the SE-L Nav.

Buyers also get the free choice of Dynamic Blue Mica, Snowflake White Pearl or Jet Black Mica paint.

Highlights across all models in the updated Mazda2 line-up include the arrival of G-Vectoring Control technology and improvements to the suspension and steering.

Now with Mazda's 1.5-litre SKYACTIV-G petrol engine, the nine-model Mazda2 range starts at £12,695 for the 75PS SE.

CHAMPIONS: Steeple Bumpstead are getting ready for life in Kershaw League, Senior B

Despair as Dellar's ton is in vain

A BRILLIANT knock of 156 from Adam Dellar proved to be in vain as a big collapse cost Haverhill dear at Braintree in Marshall Hatchick Two Counties Championship, Division One.

Captain Dellar lost the toss and his team were asked to field first, limiting the hosts to 285 for 7 after they had been steaming along on 165 for 1.

A couple of wickets from Chris Palmer helped the cause and there was a good spell from teenager Harry Harding (3 for 37).

In reply, Dellar brought up his 150 in the 35th over and his side only needed 36 runs off the last 15 overs.

However, the skipper was caught for 156 and panic set in, with the visitors being removed for 279 and ending up seven runs shy of the victory target.

"I'm obviously extremely disappointed and frustrated," said Dellar, whose side now prop up the table.

"We got ourselves into another winning position and couldn't get over the line. We need to start converting these opportunities into wins."

Dan Wallage's 3 for 22 and skipper Greg Street's 65 could not prevent Haverhill III losing by nine runs to Lakenheath II in Division Nine West.

And there was also a narrow seven-run defeat for Haverhill in the Suffolk T20 competition, with Will Bailey (3 for 11) and Joey Kettle (55) the top performers.

Rovers get hands on regional award

HAVERHILL Rovers are the winners of this year's FA Charter Standard Community Club regional award.

The club were put forward for the regional award for the East Midlands and East Region after winning the Suffolk county award.

Rovers currently have more than 40 teams, catering for children as young as 4 all the way through to adults, with their first team playing in the Thurlow Nunn League, Premier Division.

In a statement the Rovers committee said they were delighted that their hard work was being recognised.

They said: "From the club's perspective the support and partnership we have with key organisations such as Haverhill Community Sports Association and Suffolk FA are vital in delivering our football development plan.

"Our aim is to provide football for all whilst we also wanting to produce as many home grown players as possible through to our first team.

"We are fully committed to a plan that every year will see our football development pathway vision become a reality as our talent will be developed from within.

"We as a club have agreed we are patient and want to be successful through the development of the club and our players."

■ Steeple Bumpstead are enjoying a well-earned summer break after enjoying a title-winning campaign.

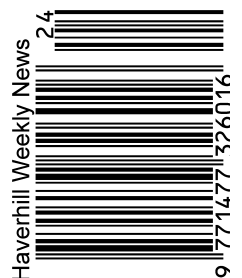

The team were crowned Mead Plant & Grab League, Division 1A champions having been new to that level of football in the Cambridgeshire leagues.

They are now looking forward to testing themselves in Kershaw League, Senior B as they climb towards the Premier Division.

Manager Kevin Farlie was proud of his players, and also thanked club sponsor Fir Tree Technology for their support.

The squad comprised J Cowell, J Martin, T Lock, T Boyce, M Farlie, J Lumm, E Knight, J Haylock, J Warner, S Finn, E Tooth, N Gridley, C Long and S Spiers.
